City Council sets new property tax rate

Gives first reading to nuisance ordinance

By Larry Rowell
Editor

With residents facing higher prices of just about anything, one thing that won't be increasing next year for Liberty residents is their property tax rate.

In a special called meeting on Monday, Liberty City Council voted on the first reading of an ordinance accepting a rate slightly less than the rate in 2012.

The 22.3-cent rate will generate $200,275 in property tax revenues, compared with $195,991 in 2012, according to figures from City Hall. In contrast, the 2011 rate was 22.5 cents while the 2010 rate was 22.6 cents.

An additional $17,299 will be generated by the tax of 20.8 cents on motor vehicles. Revenue from bank fees will bring in another $34,642, bringing the projected total net revenue for 2013 to $252,216, compared to $248,011 for 2012.

Residents can expect to receive the tax bill within the next few weeks. The bills are due upon receipt and no discount is offered for early payment as it is with county taxes. No penalties are incurred until after Jan. 31.

Nuisance ordinance
Also on the agenda during Monday's meeting was first reading of an ordinance relating to properties within the city deemed to be a nuisance.

A property owner in violation of the ordinance could be found guilty of a Class A misdemeanor and fined up to $500 and imprisoned up to a year for each offense.

In addition, a landlord can also face up to $7,500 in civil fines associated Liberty Elementary School students released more than 350 balloons on Monday in front of the school in recognition of Red Ribbon Week, a drug prevention awareness campaign held annually in October. Before releasing the balloons, the students pledged to remain drug free. This year's theme for Red Ribbon Week is "A Healthy Me is Drug Free".

2014 election filing opens Nov. 6

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Although the General Election is more than a year away, eligible candidates can file to run for office beginning next week.

Casey County Clerk Casey Davis said that Nov. 6 will be the first day that candidates can file in his office.

"The last day that candidates can file to run in the May 20 primary and in the Nov. 4 General Election will be at 4 p.m. on Jan. 28," Davis said.

On the local level, every county office is up for reelection for a four-year term, including Davis as County Clerk, Property Valuation Administrator Eric Brown, County Attorney Tom Weddle, County Judge-Executive Ronald Wright as well as the four magistrates — Kenny Morgan, David "Frog" Wethington, David Phelps, and Jamey Maupin.

The seats of school board members Michael Turner and Anthony Cox, in Districts Two and Three, respectively, will also be up for reelection.

Concerning officials in the city of Liberty, the mayor's seat as well as the six city council positions — currently held by Steven Brown, Andy Lawhorn, Mitchell Phillips, Brad Vaughn, Brian Beeler, and Larry Bowmer — will also be on the ballot.

The mayor serves a four-year term while city councilmen serve a two-year term.

As far as state government, Mike Harmon, R-Danville, who represents Casey and Boyle counties, will be on the ballot seeking a two year term. State Senator Jimmy Higdon, R-Lebanon, won't be on the ballot until 2016.

Also facing reelection will be Casey County Circuit Court Judge Judy D. Vance, who won a special election last year to fill the seat of the late Judge James G. Weddle, who died while sitting on the bench.

Michael Loy, who serves as Casey County District Judge, will also be facing a reelection bid.

The circuit judge serves an eight-year term while the district judge is elected to a four-year term.

National races which promise to feature a great deal of publicity include Kentucky's senior Republican Senator, Mitch McConnell, who faces challenger Matt Bevin in the May primary.

The winner of the Republican primary will likely face Democratic frontrunner Alison Lundergan Grimes, who currently serves as Kentucky's Secretary of State.

Kentucky's First District Congressman, Ed Whitfield, will also stand for reelection for a two-year term.

Davis said that another important date for voters to remember is Dec. 31, the last day to change political party affiliations for the May primary election.

Chamber presents Golden Awards

By Larry Rowell

Tributes were handed out at the Liberty-Casey County Chamber of Commerce's annual awards banquet on Thursday night. Eleven groups, organizations or individuals were recognized, including three Lifetime Achievement honorees, Dr. Cathryn Cornett, Anthony York, and Donald Wilson.

Blaine Staat, the chamber's executive director, served as emcee for the event, which was held at the Casey County Pork Producers Building at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center.

After the welcome and opening remarks by Staat, Pastor Derick Terry offered the invocation before the catered buffet meal was enjoyed by 140 chamber supporters.

An auction, conducted by Steve Fox of 1st Choice Auction, netted $840, including $205 paid for a platter of fried pies made by Linnie Wright. A raffle also brought in $1,345 for chamber causes.

Staat and fellow Chamber of Commerce board members Jonathan Wilkerson, Stacey Beeler, Laura Hebrock, Nicki Johnson, David Cundiff, Rachyl Cundiff, Curt Demrow, Angela King, and Connie Montgomery, presented the awards.

Attendees also heard from state Rep. Mike Harmon, R-Danville, who represents Casey and Boyle counties.

Casey Hospital audit reports district's debt decreasing

By Katelynn Griffin
Staff Writer

Casey County Hospital District's Board of Directors received good news from the financial audit on Oct. 21.

Rodney Welch, of Welch and Co. Certified Public Accountants, said the long term debt went down about a million dollars from 2012 to 2013. According to the audit, the hospital has paid off $1.6 million in debt.

"I think that is significant," Welch said.

The hospital began paying off debt items that previously had not been paid on, about $549,000 worth. Include that amount with the debt items the hospital had already been paying and the total was over a million dollars, Welch said.

There was only one minor hiccup in the audit that ended in fiscal year June 30, 2013.

"We ended the year with zero cash," Welch said. "What happened was kind of a fluke. We had a payroll at the end of June and we transferred the money from one account to the payroll account. The account that it was transferred from recorded the money coming out, but the payroll account did not record as money coming in the same day. And it put us in a negative balance of about $100,000."

Welch compared the bank statements with the balances and in all actuality there was $600,000 in cash. It wasn't anything to be concerned about, just a transfer at the end of the month, Welch told the board.

"Is that gonna put up a red flag to the auditors?" Board member Denny Johnson asked. "I know a lot of times there are questions, especially with the way times are now."

"I would hope not," Welch said. "Not if they understand bookkeeping."

Welch said in the past auditors have asked for explanations, but this is something that can be easily explained.

Total current assets are $6.9 million. Total operating revenues are $17.5 million and total operating expenses are $17.2 million, making the operating income $387,938.

City nuisance ordinance needed

As politicians, Liberty City Council members are faced with situations which call for Solomonic wisdom when considering ordinances which affect property owners.

One such measure, a Nuisance Ordinance, received first reading on Monday with second reading and adoption scheduled for Tuesday.

If adopted by the council, the law would affect landlords who rent their properties in the city.

The ordinance basically calls for landlords to screen tenants for criminal backgrounds in an effort to cut down on possible criminal activity in the apartments and homes where they live.

Mayor Steve Sweeney cited as one example that Liberty police officers have responded to calls at one apartment building in downtown Liberty about 75 times, and that, the mayor said, was to deal with domestic violence issues as well as illegal drug activity.

The proposed ordinance is complex as it calls for the possibility of landlords being held liable and paying fines for the misdeeds of their tenants. City Councilman Andy Lawhorn and landlord Brad Settles of Lexington oppose the measure on first reading.

We support the mayor and council in this issue of trying to clean up properties that make the downtown area unsafe as well as dominating police officers' time and placing their lives in danger.

Liberty is a wonderful small town known for its friendly and welcoming residents.

Criminal activity of the sort going on downtown needs to be dealt with and this ordinance will help.

A few of my favorite things

Raindrops on roses and whiskers on kittens, bright copper kettles and warm woolen mittens. Julie Andrews sang that these were a few of her favorite things in "The Sound of Music."

I like some of those things, too, but if I had to sing about a few of my favorite things, the song wouldn't rhyme. What rhymes with sweatshirt?

Sweatshirts in the winter are among my favorite things. I especially like the ones that haven't been washed so many times that the inside fleece is still fluffy and not "pilled up." I'd freeze without my sweatshirts.

If I were given a choice between potato chips and kale chips, I'd always choose the potato chips. Besides, who in their right mind would eat kale chips? Potato chips are what God would munch on after a hard day watching after us.

I am very particular, however, about which potato chips I buy. I've tried them all in every flavor known to man but my favorite will always be the Lay's Classic potato chips. Open a new package and place just one chip on your tongue. Leave it there until the salt and the taste make your mouth flood with saliva. Crunch down. Nothing better! Then I have a tendency to put about six more in my mouth at the same time but there is nothing better than that first one.

Cars and other vehicles don't mean much to me. I don't go nuts over the latest version of the Mercedes or Lincoln or Cadillac. I just want a car that will get me from point A to point B and not cost me an arm and a leg to fill with gas and maintain. If somebody said, however, that I had to choose my favorite car, it would be a red 1970 Volkswagen Bug.

I had a red 1970 Bug once. One of my nephews

Joberta WELLS

has it now. When I bought it I had an air-conditioner put on it because that didn't come as standard equipment. The car had about 57 or 58 horsepower and I couldn't run the air conditioner going up a hill. Didn't matter — I loved it!

Another of my favorite things is my UPS man, William ("Woody") Hazelwood. He is one of the dearest and kindest people in this whole world. He also has a sense of humor, and that puts him at the top of my list. I think everyone in Liberty and Casey County feels the same way I do.

I like whiskers on kittens, too, Julie Andrews. I also like whiskers on full-grown cats. I especially like them if they are on orange cats.

Movies are among my favorite things although I have rarely gone to a movie theatre in the last 20 years. Now that we have a new theatre in Liberty, I expect this to change. Maybe the new theatre could do reruns of some of the golden oldies. I vote for re-visiting all the John Wayne movies! How about "The Quiet Man" on St. Patrick's Day? I'd be happy to make a list for them.

Where is my favorite place on Earth? Come on, you know me well enough to know that it is in Casey County. It is Yosemite, Kentucky. I feel like I have been in heaven and on vacation since the first day I moved here. Yosemite is a great place — you just have to get to know it and ignore all the bad things said about it. The Yosemite of 1895 was truly a wild and wooly place. It's a lovely place with lovely people these days. I wouldn't live anywhere else. What a hoot!

There's no place like home

My wife and I were privileged to celebrate our 35th wedding anniversary last week in Hawaii.

Having never visited the 50th state, I looked forward to warm tropical breezes and seeing the sites in this beautiful paradise.

We landed in Honolulu on the island of Oahu after about 10 hours of flying time. Those airline seats are no treat but it's the only way to get there.

I was struck by the sheer beauty of the land with mountains rising majestically near the ocean which was the clearest water I'd ever seen, and I've seen the oceans off of Florida, and off the coasts of west Africa and Brazil.

I found the people to be some of the friendliest I've ever met, living up to the name of being "The Aloha State."

Every where we went, people would stop us and ask

Larry ROWELL
Editor

if we needed directions or help. And, we never were ill at ease, wondering if we were in the wrong part of town where criminal activity might be going on.

We visited all the tourist sites such as the national cemetery where many U.S. service personnel are buried as well as Hanauma Bay, without a doubt one of the prettiest, bluest, bodies of water on the face of the earth.

The weather was predictably in the mid-80s every day, dipping into the low 70s at night. It rains almost every day, but only for a few minutes.

But without a doubt, the most moving experience I had was at Pearl Harbor, where the remains of Navy service men reside under water on the USS Arizona, which the Japanese bombed and sunk on Dec. 7, 1941.

It was indeed a solemn occasion to stand on the deck of the Arizona Memorial and look down on the rusted remains of that great battleship that was commissioned to protect America.

We were there on Friday, the first day after the memorial reopened following the government shutdown which ended on Oct. 23.

More than 4,000 waited patiently for a chance to pay their respects to these brave fighting men, many of whom died below decks in their bunks.

It made me thankful to be an American and I also thought about my dad, who served in the Pacific Theater in the Air Force during World War II.

A great price was paid on Dec. 7 to keep our country free and we all owe a supreme debt of gratitude to every member of the United States armed forces.

We also enjoyed a lot of good food as my wife and I look for restaurants where the locals eat. One such place was Papa Ole's, featuring barbecue and seafood dishes. If you see local folks eating there, it must be good, and it was.

But alas, all good times come to an end and we faced the long flight back home.

While Hawaii holds good memories, I'm glad to be back at work in Casey County, another place where good, friendly people live and work.

Mahalo (thanks) Hawaii, and y'all come see us.

Enjoying a traffic jam in a rural setting

Last Wednesday, Oct. 23, I was driving home in Lincoln County (I'm a foreigner as one nice Casey Countian told me last week) and hit five o'clock rush hour traffic. Four Amish horse buggies in a row were going up a steep hill and there was no option of passing once they started their ascent.

I was the first in a long line of cars, but honestly, I didn't mind it. Sure, it took 10 minutes to get up a hill that usually takes one, but other than a minor inconvenience, I didn't care. Of course, the 20 cars behind me may have had a different outlook on the situation.

There is something nostalgic about horse drawn carriages. The rhythmic pattern of hooves hitting the pavement and the creaking of the wheels as they turn, combined with the curvy roads and the leaves beginning to change, and it's almost surreal.

Recently, it has become cool to be an Amish. Major television networks have run reality shows, including TLC's "Breaking Amish" and, personal favorite, "Amish Mafia" on Discovery Channel.

Who would have ever guessed that a simple people, such as the Amish and Mennonite, would do perfectly for a reality TV show? Crazy. We can say with some degree of certainty that television has dramatized and fabricated these people's lives to make them more suitable for TV.

Katelynn GRIFFIN
Staff Writer

When I first moved to the state I had no clue that there was a group of people who didn't drive cars, use electricity, or the telephone. The last one apparently is changing. I've spotted a few suspenders and bonnets with cell phones. The first horse buggy I saw was nothing short of a spectacle to me.

I know that I could not conform to such a lifestyle — no question there. It's not that I couldn't rough it, but I'd choose not too. There are a few things in life that are not up for debate — they are must haves, like electricity. When it's cold, I like to turn up the heat. A cold house is not an option. Secondly, it would appear that these groups are more secretive or tend to mind their own business. Not me, ain't gonna happen. I work for a newspaper — it kind of goes with the territory.

Lastly, I need my wheels. The automobile is ingrained in the fabric of America. From the days of the great Henry Ford to the historic road trips across Route 66, Americans love their cars. Today we have the work truck, sports car, soccer mom minivans (not all minivan drivers are soccer moms. Just thought that was worth pointing out.), SUVs that can go anywhere and everywhere, and let's not forget NASCAR.

We go as far as displaying what brand of automobile we identify with on T-shirts, hats, or other accessories that can be proudly displayed in any man cave (by no means am I proposing only men collect car gear, women do too). Of course the industry over the years has had some great slogans, like "Built Ford Tough," "Chevy Runs Deep," Chrysler's "Imported from Detroit," or Dodge's "Grab Life By The Horns." You can find the Ford oval, Chevy bowtie, or Dodge horns stickers on the back windows of cars and trucks as you drive down the road and there is endless smack talk about what manufacturer is better.

Maybe you're feeling a little high class and are rolling in your Cadillac, Buick, or Lincoln. Regardless, this love we have for our cars is not about to change, although the automobile is.

Today we have things like EcoBoost technology, ABS braking systems, rearview cameras, GPS, OnStar, cars that parallel park themselves, heated seats (personal favorite), hookups for every gadget imaginable, and plenty of horses under the hood to make the ride a pleasurable one.

Lincoln County, like Casey, has numerous members of both the Amish and Mennonite communities. I live just minutes away from both, which basically guarantees that I'll come across one and have to slow way down.

The traffic jams are a little more unique in the state on these rural country roads, but that's all right. The Amish can have their antiquated mode of transportation, I'll turn up the radio and take in the scenery.

Grace Anna sings — for the world

Video of local girl singing has been shared more than 10 million times

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Thanks to the Internet, all the world has become a stage for one little Casey County girl who has captured the hearts of people around the globe with her singing ability.

Three-year-old Grace Anna Rodgers, daughter of Jeff and Angie Rodgers, is featured singing the Star Spangled Banner on YouTube videos and on Facebook pages which have been shared more than 10 million times.

"It's like wildfire, it's unbelievable what has happened by Grace just being Grace," Angie said of the sheer number of times Grace Anna's video has been viewed.

But what's even more remarkable is the progress that Grace Anna has made since being born with a rare form of dwarfism called Conradi Hunemann

photo/SUBMITTED

Three-year-old Grace Anna Rodgers, the daughter of Jeff and Angie Rodgers of Liberty, is featured singing the Star Spangled Banner on videos shared on social media.

Syndrome.

Born blind due to cataracts, Grace also suffers from severe kyphosis, an over curvature of the upper spine as well as scoliosis of the spine.

However, Grace Anna

now can see with glasses so well in fact, that doctors are pleased.

"At her last eye doctor appointment, she could say all her letters. They were jut amazed that she could see them so well,"

Angie said.

Grace Anna has also had tubes removed from her ears and she no longer wears braces on her feet because they've straightened out.

She can also count to 100, she knows her letters, and she loves talking on the phone.

Angie said that Grace Anna has memorized the unlock codes for her cell phone and routinely scrolls through her mother's contact list.

"She'll see someone's name and call them. She also sends text messages to people," Angie said.

But as much as Grace loves technology, she's mastered the art of using it to display her charms by singing.

"She wanted to sing the Star Spangled Banner so one night she did it and I put her on it," Angie said, referring to posting a video of Grace Anna on Face-

And the rest is history, with millions of views and people contacting Angie from around the world.

WOWK Channel 13, a TV station in Charleston-Huntington, recently aired Grace Anna's video on their nightly news program and it has received more than 185,000 "likes."

"I had to get a post office box so many people wanted to send Grace Anna things," Angie said. "She's gotten money, gift cards, cards, and other things," Angie said.

In addition, Angie spends what little free time she has trying to answer thousands of e-mails and Facebook messages that people have sent.

Still, with the joy that Grace Anna brings others, this little girl with an infectious smile faces her own continuing battles with physical ailments.

"We are returning to Baltimore in November. Her kneecaps have become dislocated and if they cannot do something with it under sedation, she's going to have to have knee surgery," Angie said.

Additionally, the internal hardware that's helping straighten Grace Anna's spine has shifted and she now wears a brace until her doctors in Baltimore can decide what course of action to take.

But no matter what comes, Angie said she's thankful that God is using Grace Anna to bless people everywhere.

"I told Jeff the other night that I couldn't answer any more messages from people because they were making me cry. She has really blessed people with the video," Angie said.

Grace Anna's singing video can be viewed on Facebook under Grace Anna sings.

A chronic nuisance property is defined as one on which three or more nuisance activities occur during a 60 day period or on which 12 or more have occurred during any 12 month period.

The ordinance lists a broad range of nuisance activities, ranging from harassment to murder to prostitution to gun and drug-related offenses, more than 18 in all, including the violation of any city, state, or federal law.

Once a violation has been noted, the landlord or this designee has 10 days to respond to city officials with a plan to correct the violation.

If a landlord or property owner fails to correct the situation according to the agreed upon plan for one year, then a citation may be issued, even if the nuisance violation is on the part of a tenant.

Further, the city can also initiate a summary closure order, meaning the property has become a threat to public safety and should therefore be closed.

To avoid citations, fines, and possible closures of properties, landlords will not be held responsible if they prove that tenants were screened as to their criminal backgrounds and the landlord includes information in the lease stating a tenant can be evicted in 30 days for criminal activity or for a violation of the nuisance ordinance.

Landlords or property owners are also protected against penalties if they can show that they tried to prevent violations of the ordinance, did not commit the violation themselves, or that they didn't permit the violation.

Discussion

Council member Andy Lawhorn asked "why do we have to go after the landlord, why don't we go after the actual tenant?"

Sweeney responded that's the real issue, and the ordinance holds the landlord accountable for the tenants that he rents to.

"But why should we, as a society, have to put up with landlords who don't really care who they lease to and the building's in a neighborhood with children who are in danger. In certain locales around here, we let criminals occupy buildings, why should we not tell them to go elsewhere. We don't want our children in danger," Sweeney said.

58 Hustonville Street

At issue for Sweeney has been the number of calls police have responded to at an apartment building in downtown Liberty owned by Lexington resident Brad Settles.

"In the course of two, six month periods, the police have responded to at least 77 calls at 58 Hustonville St.," Sweeney said after the meeting, adding that the calls ranged from drug offenses to domestic violence to tenants burning rubber insulation from wiring.

Settles, who attended Monday's meeting, raised several objections to the ordinance based on an e-mail he received from his attorney.

Chief among the objections was the number of violations that can be cited in a single night in a rental property with multiple units, causing the property to be declared a nuisance.

"For example, if one resident left his trash can out too long on the night that he had his friends over for a poker game that got loud and violated the noise ordinance, and the loud friend was arrested for alcohol intoxication, that property is now a chronic nuisance property," the e-mail states.

Sweeney sought to assure Settles that according to the ordinance, if the landlord has screened his tenants and followed the ordinance, he will not be held responsible for a tenant's misdeeds.

"If a landlord has done what's in this ordinance, you're not going to be cited," Sweeney said.

Nay vote

When Sweeney called for a vote on the first reading of this ordinance, only Lawhorn spoke in opposition to the measure as presented.

"I'm going to vote against this tonight. Because my way of thinking this is kind of centered around one or two that's here now. The broad aspect of this is if we do this we're going to be driving landlords out. He's not going to want to rent here to go though all this red tape and you're going to see property owners of these houses going for sale," Lawhorn said.

Second reading and possible vote for adoption was scheduled for Tuesday at 5 p.m. at City Hall. Next week's print edition will update the story or visit www.caseynews.net.

Food benefits set to decrease Nov. 1

According to the Kentucky Press News Service the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services (CHFS) is notifying recipients of funding from the federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) – formerly known as food stamps – that they will see their benefits decrease beginning Nov. 1.

The change is because increased benefits provided to SNAP by the federal American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) in 2009 are set to expire. Congress has not voted to extend this stimulus funding.

CHFS' Department for Community Based Services (DCBS) administers the Kentucky food benefits program, which is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), in every county.

DCBS Commissioner Teresa James said the temporary stimulus funding helped thousands of Kentuckians through a worthy program.

In 2009, stimulus funding boosted every participating household's benefits by 13.6 percent – a two-person household would have received $44 more each month.

"The additional funding made a significant impact on our customers' access to nutritious foods," James said. "Though we are disappointed this extra funding is lapsing, we will still provide benefits to eligible customers and connect them with other community resources that can help feed their family healthful meals on a lower budget."

The long-term change in benefits, after the stimulus funding expires, will depend on household size, income and expenses. A household of two who currently receives $367 a month will likely see a decrease in benefits by $20 a month to $347 per month.

Owner of pawn shop selling contents for kids

The crime scene tape is long gone from ABC Gold Games and More. It has been replaced by a sign on the newly installed front door announcing the store on Fourth Street reopened for business on Oct. 28, according to The Advocate Messenger.

But it won't be business as usual for ABC, where three people were gunned down inside the store during a Sept. 20 robbery. Building owner Steve Divine, who ran the store with victims Mike and Angela Hockensmith, is selling out the inventory, with most of the proceeds going to the Hockensmith's two surviving young children.

"I considered them family," Divine said of the Hockensmiths. Daniel Smith, a gold buyer from Richmond, also was killed in the robbery. Allen Keith, a Baptist preacher from Burnside, has been indicted in the crimes and is scheduled to be arraigned in Boyle Circuit Court next month.

All of ABC's inventory — everything from "tons of tools" to TVs and appliances to watches, cameras, knives and furniture — along with store fixtures will be sold. Divine said he plans to keep the store open until Friday, Nov. 1, or maybe Nov. 8, and then sell the remaining inventory at auction. After all the goods are gone, he plans to sell the building, too.

"It's time to let it go and get on with things," said Divine, adding that he already has offers for the building.

Keeping in the spirit of ABC — which Divine described as a "buy-sell-trade store," not a pawn shop — the prices on all of the items for sale are negotiable.

"I don't have anything priced. Just make me an offer that's reasonable and you'll probably walk away with it," he said. "I really don't want to do a lot of haggling over a couple of dollars. I mean, it's for the kids."

Divine said he is fond of the Hockensmith's 9-year-old son and 14-month-old daughter, and often went to the store just to visit with them. He said he wants to help them as much as he can, but can't afford to donate all the proceeds from the sale to their fund. The children are now living with family in Somerset.

"I still have bills to pay," he said. "But the vast majority of it will go to them, I'd say about 75 to 80 percent. As much as I love those kids, I have a family to care for, too."

KSP arrest bank robbery suspect

The Central Kentucky News Journal reported that Kentucky State Police have arrested a Campbellsville man in connection with bank robberies in Sonora and Buffalo.

Joshua R. Spangler, 27, was arrested on two counts of second-degree robbery. Police also served Spangler warrants for violating parole and theft by unlawful taking.

According to a news release from KSP Post 4, Spangler is a suspect in a Jan. 15 robbery at The Cecilian Bank in Sonora and a Feb. 27 holdup at Bank of Buffalo in Buffalo.

"Through photos released to the media, our detectives were able to generate tips," Post 4 spokesman Jeff Gregory said. "During a very thorough and complete investigation, these tips lead them to Mr. Spangler."

Following the robberies, police released photos captured from the banks' surveillance footage of the suspect and the vehicle and requested assistance from the public in identifying the man.

According to KSP, in both robberies, the suspect entered the bank and handed the teller a note demanding cash. After receiving money, he fled the scene on foot.

In the second robbery at Bank of Buffalo, police reports stated the suspect's note indicated he was armed.

According to citations, two tellers at The Cecilian Bank and a witness from the Bank of Buffalo have identified Spangler as the suspect.

Spangler is lodged at Hardin County Detention Center in lieu of a $50,000 cash bond. He is scheduled to appear Nov. 1 for a preliminary hearing in Hardin District Court.

Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted. Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy. Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

Mayor Richard Carmicle said that Liberty had no immediate worries about a water shortage. A bulldozer was used to cut an eight-foot slice through gravel immediately below the water intake; it was filled with clay to prevent leaks. Eddie McGowan who owns the mill dam at Middleburg told Carmicle that if water got really scarce he could release impounded water at the mill dam. This water backs upstream for about a mile and was not particularly needed by anyone.

Dr. Thomas Wilkey said that farmers could request free calftub vaccinations during the entire month of November. The state and federal governments were still paying the bill as a part of the bangs program for the county.

Paul Patton resigned as pastor of the Walltown Christian Church and relocated with his family to the Junction City Christian Church.

Sandra Bastin was elected a Student Association Senator at Berea College.

The Liberty Ministerial Association adopted a plan for a Chaplain of the Week program at the Casey County War Memorial Hospital.

Dallas Wesley purchased the half interest in the Liberty Grill owned by Jason Wilson. Wesley formerly owned the Grill and sold to Wilson and Elwood Hoskins three years before.

Dr. Herman A. Ellis, a professor of economics at the College of Commerce at the University of Kentucky published a booklet, "Motor Bus Transportation in the Southeast." Ellis was a former Liberty High School student.

And the 2013 Chamber of Commerce award winners are...

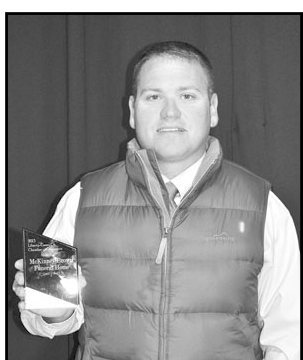

The 49er was honored with the New Business Award. Pictured here are Kandis Young, Rita Bryant and Chris Young.

First Day Farm received the Agriculture Award. Accepting the award were owners Amy and Scott Russell.

Sawyer Beeler of Liberty was awarded for youth entrepreneurship.

Curt Demrow accepted the Business of the Year award for McKinney-Brown Funeral Home, which tied with Dowell Furniture.

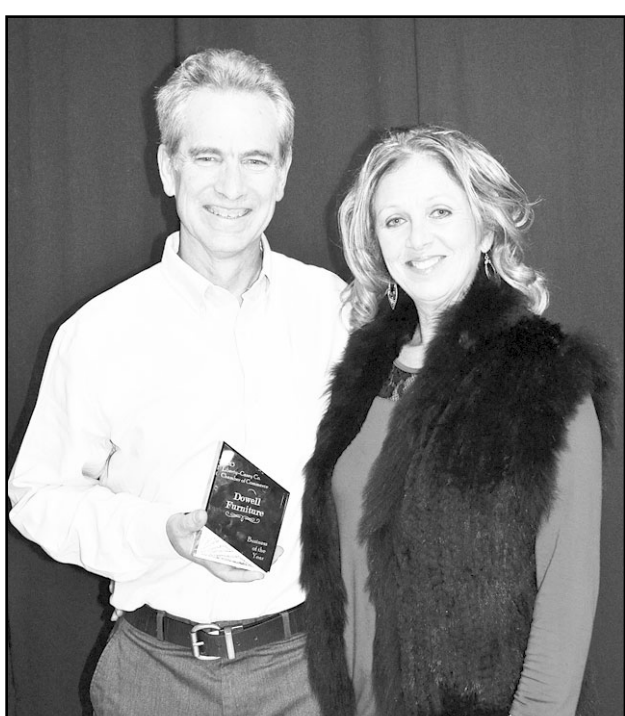

Principal Boyd Harris accepted the Education award on behalf of Liberty Elementary School.

Dr. Cassie Tyner received the chamber's Healthcare award.

Laura and Tracy Hebrock, owners of Lights of Liberty Theater, earned the Entrepreneur of the Year honor as well as the Beautification Award.

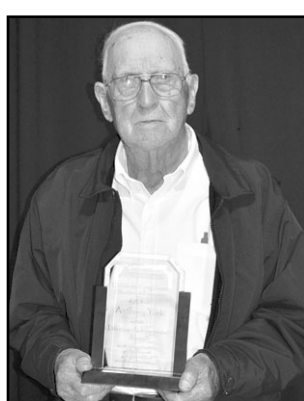

Barry and Jenny Rousey, owners of Dowell Furniture, accepted the Business of the Year award. Dowell Furniture and McKinney-Brown Funeral Home each won the award in a tie.

Casey County Relay for Life was recognized with the Organization of the Year honor. Pictured here with the award are Deana Livengood, Nicki Tarter, Angela King, Rhonda Cochran and Cassie Tyner.

Anthony York was given one of three lifetime achievement awards from the chamber. The other two honorees were Dr. Cathryn Cornett and Donald Wilson.

Editor Larry Rowell accepted the Community Spirit Award on behalf of The Casey County News.

Chamber

About the winners...

Winners of the Liberty-Casey County Chamber of Commerce's annual awards are selected by a vote of the chamber members. Staat said there were 100 chamber members this year, a good number for the community.

Nominations in each category are solicited in July, with ballots mailed out in September. Each chamber member is permitted one vote per category from among the nominees.

The chamber board varied the awards presentation ceremony this year, with three nominees from each category and the winner announced in the style of the Academy Awards. The board also selected the recipients of the Lifetime Achievement award.

Lifetime Achievement

■ Described as one of three women who graduated from medical school in 1950, Dr. Cathryn Cornett was honored for her medical service which included working in private practice in Liberty and Somerset. Cornett retired after serving with health departments in Casey, Boyle, Lincoln, and Russell counties.

She also was one of the pioneers who helped to bring the Casey County Public Library to Liberty, serving for many years on the board of directors.

In addition, Cornett has served as a deaconess at First Christian Church in Liberty. Cornett was unable to attend the banquet to accept the award.

■ Anthony York, 93, was honored as a tireless worker who moved from Russell Springs to Liberty in 1953 to manage the Casey Dry Goods Store, and later Baldwins Men's Store, a position he held for 19 years.

Beginning in 1988 and continuing until today, York has been a fixture serving customers in King's Department Store.

He also mows the Brush Creek Cemetery as well as yards for family members and friends.

York is a long-time member at Liberty First Baptist Church, where he has served as an usher and member of the Building and Grounds Committee.

■ The third recipient to be honored with a Lifetime Achievement award was Donald Wilson, who has served on the Liberty Fire Department for more than 60 years, with 50 of those years as chief of the department.

Wilson also oversees the Glenwood and Memorial Garden cemeteries as well as being a member of Liberty United Methodist Church for many years.

Presenter Steve Sweeney said that Wilson is "the dean of firefighters and the most admired volunteer fire chief in the state."

Wilson was unable to attend the banquet to accept the award.

Citizen of the Year

This year's Citizen of the Year award was given to a person who's become known for her work with Operation Christmas Child, a ministry that collects shoeboxes filled with gifts for underprivileged children around the world.

In presenting the award to Nicki Johnson, Connie Montgomery characterized good citizens as leaders, participants, organizers, and cheerleaders.

"They are looked upon as mentors, role models, and humanitarians by their peers and their community. They have — as much as is possible — no personal agenda, and their actions are selfless in nature," she said. "But perhaps we need go no further than the Book of Galatians, Chapter 5, which extols these seven virtues: Love, joy, patience, peace, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. If we have those, is it even possible to be something other than a good citizen?"

Education

Liberty Elementary School carried home the top honor this year for elevating student achievement into the top 3 percent of all elementary schools in the state of Kentucky. Principal Boyd Harris accepted the award on behalf of the school.

Business of the Year

Two local and long-time businesses were honored — Barry Rousey, owner of Dowell Furniture Company and Curt Demrow, owner of McKinney Brown Funeral Home. The two businesses were lauded for being respected in the community, viewed as dependable and reliable, and offered up as a flagship of the type of business residents are proud to have in the community.

Beautification Award

Last year, Tracy and Laura Hebrock leased the old Kentuckian Theater in downtown Liberty and immediately began renovations, with a dream of re-opening a movie theater that had been closed for nearly 40 years.

Renamed Lights of Liberty and opened in September, it features two theaters showing first run movies.

The Hebrocks also took home the award as Entrepreneurs of the Year for their vision of re-opening Lights of Liberty.

Agriculture

First Day Farm owners Scott and Amy Russell received this year's Agriculture Award for providing Casey County with its first quality, family-oriented agri-tourism attraction, said presenter Staat.

Staat said that agriculture today has gone far beyond just harvesting a crop, milking a cow, or raising a few head of cattle.

"It includes integrating the technology of today with the knowledge of the past, being good stewards of the land, humane caretakers of livestock, protectors of watersheds, and patient educators of the public at large," Staat said.

Organization of the Year

Characterized as having several defining qualities, the Organization of the Year award went to a group that has embodied excellence year after year.

Presenter Jonathan Wilkerson said that Relay for Life is committed to excellence, having a stated purpose and well defined goals, adapting to change, communicating well among all members of the organization, and keeping the organization growing by fostering a culture of continuous learning. Nicki Tarter accepted the award on behalf of the Relay for Life committee.

New Business

The 49'er, owned by Rita Bryant, has become a staple in Casey County for turning out good fast food at fair prices during the spring and summer months.

It was cited as being a business that has pride in the physical appearance of their business and concern for how their business impacts the community, raising the standards of other similar businesses by engaging in healthy, fair competition, and providing good jobs and going the extra mile for their employees.

Healthcare

Dr. Cassie Tyner was honored as the healthcare provider of the year for her exemplary bedside manner and compassion for her patients that far exceeds any standard.

Youth Entrepreneur

Sawyer Beeler was

this year's recipient of the Youth Entrepreneur award for his business acumen that began when he sold lemonade from a front yard stand during the summers. Beeler, along with his cousins Kennedy Sabharwal and Spencer Sabharwal, recently won $15,000 in the team grand prize event in "Grow Your Own Business Challenge," a contest sponsored by Warren Buffett's Secret Millionaires Club, an animated web and cable TV series that teaches financial literacy and entrepreneurship.

Community Spirit

The Casey County News was honored with a Community Spirit award for its continuing coverage of community events in a positive manner. Editor Larry Rowell accepted the award on behalf of the paper.

Congratulations, Anthony York

OUTSTANDING A KENTUCKY ADVENTURE IN HIS FIELD CHAPTER 8

"Don't even think about it, son," Pa commanded when he saw me getting ready to kill the slithering black snake I had found in the barn. "Leave him alone."

"You mean we aren't going to kill him?" I asked, proud I had gathered enough courage to even get close to the creature.

"Wouldn't dream of it," Pa said. "Snakes are good for farms. This little guy is a rat snake. He lives here in the barn and eats mice and rats. The snake gets his dinner, and we don't have rodents."

"Can I pick him up?" I asked.

"I didn't say that," Pa said, chuckling. "This snake might bite you, but it isn't a venomous snake. Sometimes it's hard to distinguish between venomous and non-venomous snakes. That's why it's best to leave them alone and let an adult know a snake is around."

"Should we tell Mr. Parker?" I asked.

"He knows. This snake has been here for years, which is why you don't see rats or mice."

"How about I take the eggs you've already gathered and give them to Mrs. Parker," Pa suggested. "You keep gathering the eggs and we'll take what's left to Granny. Mrs. Parker always insists we take some home."

"We're going to eat these?" I asked.

"Of course, but after we clean them," Pa said.

"I've never eaten eggs that didn't come from the grocery store."

"Where do you think the store gets the eggs?" Pa asked.

When we returned home, it was lunchtime. I couldn't imagine being hungry after the huge breakfast I had eaten, but I was. It was a good thing because Granny had cooked a feast, and it smelled scrumptious! The beautiful oak table was graced with pork chops, corn on the cob, green beans, stewed tomatoes, biscuits and strawberry preserves. And of course there was a pitcher of cold milk straight from Patty and Bonnie.

"We've never seen such a large delicious lunch," Chloe commented before asking Granny if we could help with anything.

"Farmers are accustomed to eating a large noon-day meal," Granny explained. "They get up early, milk and do the morning chores, eat breakfast, and then work hard all morning long, burning off all those breakfast calories. By lunch they're starved and will need the energy to make it through the rest of the day. And just so you know, everything on the table was made or grown right here in Kentucky."

"You bought it all at a Kentucky grocery store?" I asked, trying to understand.

"No, sweetie. All the vegetables — and the strawberries — were grown in our garden. The milk and the butter came from Bonnie and Patty, and the pork chops came from a friend who owns a pig farm," Granny said. "You could say Pa and I are Kentucky Proud."

"We're proud of Kentucky too!" I said, happy I lived in the commonwealth.

"I know you are, doggies," Pa said, "but Kentucky Proud is a program that encourages folks to purchase products that come from our state. The average meal travels 1,500 miles from somewhere far away to a table. During the travel process, the food loses its nutritional value and its taste, but if we buy Kentucky products the food doesn't have to travel, which means it's fresher, and we're supporting our local farmers and keeping the money here in our state."

"I wish we could eat Kentucky Proud products," Chloe said, "but we don't have any pigs or chickens or cows!"

"You can still eat Kentucky Proud," Granny told us. "When your mom is at the grocery store, have her look for the Kentucky Proud symbol on the food. That will let her know it was made or grown right here in Kentucky. And if you ever go out for dinner or supper, make sure you go to a Kentucky Proud restaurant. You can find a list on their website, Kyproud.com."

I couldn't wait to give Mom that information. She was a terrific cook, but using Kentucky products would make her vittles even yummier.

After we finished lunch — or dinner as Granny called it — we ate fresh peach pie with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. No doubt about it, I loved life as a farmer.

"You doggies take a few minutes to enjoy yourselves while I check the weather forecast to see what tomorrow will bring. Then we will get back to work," Pa said.

Chloe and I helped Granny with the dishes and then took a walk outside. We smelled a very interesting smell that we couldn't quite identify. All of a sudden, we saw smoke coming from a barn. We ran back in the house as fast as we could and called the fire department. We hoped we weren't too late!

HOROSCOPES

Oct. 30-Nov. 5

CAPRICORN

December 22-January 19
Keep your intentions hidden from others until you are ready for the big reveal, Capricorn. This will help make the surprise even more exciting for all those involved.

AQUARIUS

January 20-February 18
Aquarius, discussions reach a point where you want to make permanent changes to your plans. Mull things over before making any final decisions, but enjoy this exciting time.

PISCES

February 19-March 20
Personal details about your private life may become public, Pisces. How this information is handled depends on your reaction.

ARIES

March 21-April 19
Aries, shake things up a bit to inspire some much-needed change. Be a tourist in your own city if you cannot afford a trip or immerse yourself in new cultures.

TAURUS

April 20-May 20

It is not a good week to begin new projects, Taurus. In fact, cosmic signs point to finishing up anything you have outstanding. Try to focus on financial matters as well.

GEMINI

May 21-June 21

Cooperate with others this week, Gemini. This works best when you embrace compromise. Listen to what others have to say and always keep an open mind.

CANCER

June 22-July 22

Cancer, a desire to get organized has been on your mind for quite some time. Now is the ideal time to do something about it. Start by clearing out clutter and go from there.

LEO

July 23-August 22

Enjoy a short vacation, Leo. It may be a jaunt to a weekend hideaway or something off the beaten path, but make the most of this well-deserved escape from the daily grind.

VIRGO

August 23-September 22
Virgo, you are feeling domestic this week, so enjoy putting around the house these next several days. You can catch up on decorating or renovating the home.

LIBRA

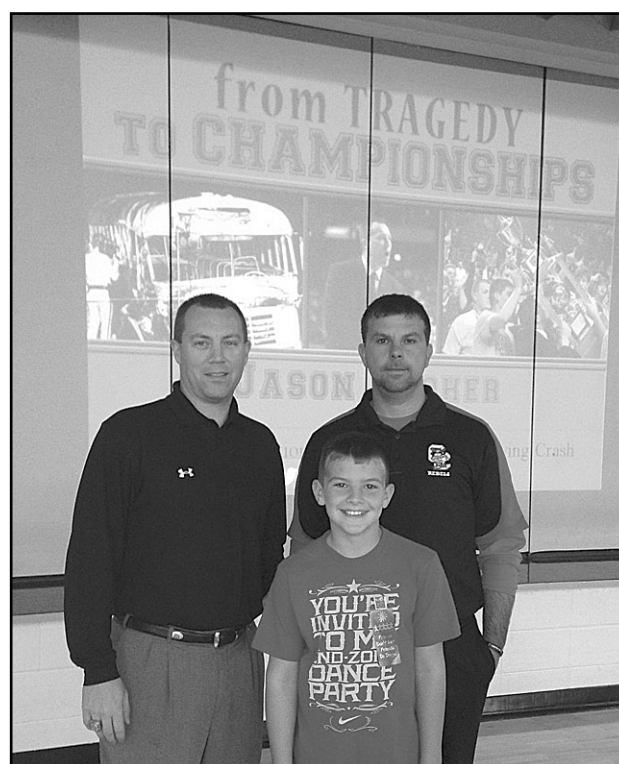

September 23-October 22
Libra, you feel a strong need to communicate with others this week. Share some truths with your loved ones, but try not to come across as if you have an agenda.

SCORPIO

October 23-November 21
Scorpio, you may have a desire to travel and seek adventure, but right now finances won't allow it. If you can keep expenses down, you may have the opportunity soon.

SAGITTARIUS

November 22-December 21
Expect to have luck on your side this week, Sagittarius. As a natural born risk-taker, all you need is a little incentive to get out and take a chance.

Rebel, Lady Rebel golf teams close out season with awards banquet

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

The 2013 golf season came to an official end on Oct. 21 when the boys' and girls' teams celebrated their accomplishments at a season's ending banquet.

Boys

Coach Marshall Forbes honored all of his athletes at the banquet with the regional team athletes receiving special recognition. Representing Casey County at this year's Fourth Region tournament were Ethan Ammons, Tyler Ammons, Haden Bastin, Eric Livingood, and Colton Patterson.

Ethan Ammons was also given special recognition as the most improved player for the team this season.

Livingood is the team's lone senior.

Girls

The Lady Rebel team also recognized its athletes and members of the regional team at the banquet.

Competing at the regional level for Casey County were Catherine McAninch, Natalie McAninch, Laura McQueen, Shelby Salyers and Emilee Vaughn.

McQueen was the team's medalist this season, having an average score of 41 at matches and a tournament average of 80. She was also one stroke shy of qualifying for the state tournament.

Vaughn was the runner-up medalist.

The Lady Rebels have no graduating seniors this season and hope to return in full force in 2014.

The boys and girls golf teams honored their athletes on Oct. 21 at the Bread of Life Cafe. The girls' team members honored included Catherine McAninch, Laura McQueen, Natalie McAninch, Emilee Vaughn, Shelby Salyers, and Allison Jaynes.

Running Rebs bring home the gold in state meet

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

Two running Rebels brought home medals from the Meet of Champions last Saturday.

The event at Masterson Station Park in Lexington is considered the non-varsity state championship race with three age divisions: Middle School (4K), sixth grade and under (3K), and fourth grade and under (2K).

While some of Casey's varsity runners did run in the 5K event, most of the team's athletes competed at their age level.

Fourth grader Mitchell Duggins earned fourth in his division while seventh grader Jenna Vaughn also medaled, taking 44th overall.

"It was a very cold and windy day and when the meet finished the sun came out," said coach Jon Vaughn. "I was extremely proud of everybody."

Boys

Duggin's fourth place finish was an improvement by five places from last season. He finished in a time of 7:45.33.

"That's really cool," said Coach Jon Vaughn. "Our lanes were way down the hill so he had to run further uphill. I'm so proud of Mitchell."

Drew Lee was the only varsity runner for Casey's boys.

"Blake (Durham) didn't run because he's getting checked out still by the doctors," Vaughn said about the junior who has recently been dealing with health issues during his races.

"We still hope he can run at regionals but we are going to make sure his health is right first. I'm real optimistic about it right now," Vaughn said.

Lee got a late start to the race, literally, when the team arrival was delayed due to a flat tire.

"We were really late and we ran about a mile to the race. Meanwhile they had already started racing. He ended catching the last guy."

Eighth grader Noah Brown also continues to battle health issues and was unable to finish the middle school 4K.

"Noah had an asthma attack again which he was really bummed out about," Vaughn said. "He was shooting for the top ten and he had a start that would have gotten him there."

Nate Ratliff was the top finisher for middle school Rebels in a time of 17:06.30 in 236th place out of 430 runners.

"Nate continues to impress me with how hard he works out and how he's improving," said Vaughn.

Alex Wilham had a top 100 finish in the 6th grade 3K. His time of 12:58.70 earned him 98th place out of 390 runners.

Girls

Jenna Vaughn has recently become highly competitive for the Lady Rebels on the varsity level, but on Saturday the seventh grader competed at the middle school level. Vaughn crossed the line in a tie for 43rd place with Beaumont's McKayla Harshbarger. They both ran 16:41.20 among the field of 364 runners.

"She PRed by 20 seconds, which is really hard to do in that race. I was really, really proud," Vaughn said.

Kelsey Arthur and Caitlan Pollick both ran in the varsity race, each finishing with impressive times. Arthur took 23rd in a time of 23:21.30 while Pollick ran a personal best of 26:20.10.

"They both ran excellent I thought. Caitlin demolished her PR," said coach Vaughn.

Jenna Vaughn nearly had a complete team competing with her in the 4K, but Noel Davison was unable to finish, leaving the Lady Rebels with only four competitors. Laura Cuin was Casey's next best finisher, taking 180th place in a time of 18:53.0.

Abby Vaughn was the only elementary runner for Casey, as she competed in the 2K and took 86th place in a time of 9:48.

The regular season has come to a close for Casey County and the varsity will compete in the Region 5 AA race on Saturday at Cave Lake Park in Monticello in hopes of sending runners to the following weekend's state championship meet.

Inter-County Energy would like to remind you to keep safety first while enjoying a fun night of Trick-or-Treating this Halloween.

- Make sure costumes are flame resistant.
- Instead of buying masks, which can block vision, use makeup.
- Attach reflective tape to costumes and bags.
- If you set out pumpkins with candles inside, place them where kids' costumes can't accidentally catch on fire.
- Remove tripping hazards from your sidewalk and porch.
- Go with children or send them with another adult.
- If no adult can go, know the route your kids will take, tell them exactly when to be home, and loan them a cell phone for emergencies. Give them a flashlight, too.
- Inspect all candy before your children eat any of it.

Police News

Man arrested for custodial issue

Levi A. Holt, 25, of 109 Royal St., Campbellsville, was arrested on Oct. 18 at the Taylor County Sheriff's office by Deputy Dickie Benningfield and charged with custodial interference — felony. The warrant states that on Sept. 29 in Casey County, Holt failed to return a 4-year-old boy to his mother, Kimber Ann Holt.

Men arrested for threatening

■ Michael J. McKnight, 33, of 7568 South Ky. 501, Liberty, was arrested on Oct. 28 by Deputy Jordan Buis and charged with violation of a Ky EPO/DVO and third-degree terroristic threatening. According to the arrest citation, Buis responded to the above address and found McKnight — with an Emergency Protective Order against him — sitting with a fully loaded handgun on the coffee table. On the way to jail, McKnight told Buis he was going to kill the woman and her boyfriend when he got out of jail, court records state.

McKnight was also arrested on Oct. 29 by Deputy Chad Weddle and charged with fourth-degree assault, minor injury. Court documents state that McKnight hit Jessica Gadberry in the head, pulled her hair, and pushed her down.

■ Robert G. Woods, 49, of 300 L. Caudill Road, Liberty, was arrested on Oct. 23 at his residence by Deputy Freeman Luttrell and charged with third-degree terroristic threatening. The arrest warrant states that Woods threatened Francis Bishop by telling her he was going to get an axe and kill her.

Pair arrested on drug charges

■ Jessica Dawn Hatter, 26, of 2962 Poplar Hill Road, Liberty, was cited on Oct. 21 at her home by Deputies Chad Weddle and Jamie Walters and charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and third-degree possession of a controlled substance, drug unspecified. Court records indicate that officers found a plastic tube containing what was reportedly Loratab in Hatter's bedroom.

■ Stephen T. Baker, 23, of 404 Carmicle St., Liberty, was cited on Oct. 18 on South Ky. 501 and Strong Branch by Trooper Chris McDonald and charged with failure to wear a seat belt, failure to produce an insurance card, failure to notify DOT of address change, and possession of marijuana.

Man arrested for endangering children

Douglas L. Foster, 31, of 1049 South U.S. 127, Dunnville, was arrested on Oct. 17 by Officer Richie Francioni and Deputy Freeman Luttrell and charged with first offense DUI, leaving the scene of an accident, two counts of endangering the welfare of a minor, and failure of non-owner/operator to maintain insurance. The citation states that Foster's vehicle left the roadway on South U.S. 127 and hit a fire hydrant, causing extensive damage. Foster, who had a 9- and 10-year old boy and girl in the car, admitted to taking Xanax before operating the vehicle.

Man arrested on alcohol charges

Robert L. Denney Jr., 23, of 3712 North U.S. 127, Liberty, was arrested on Oct. 19 at the Roadside Park in Liberty by Officer George Emerson and Lt. Ronnie Smith and charged with first offense drinking an alcoholic beverage in a public place and possession of an open alcohol container in a motor vehicle.

Man arrested for DUI

Danny R. Sallee, 56, of 7765 Middleburg Road, Hustonville, was arrested on Oct. 25 on Ky. 198 by Trooper Kevin Roberts and charged with first offense DUI and possession of an open alcohol container in a motor vehicle. Roberts reports that Sallee was stopped at an approved road check and Sallee told officers that he had consumed around 8-10 beers and his last drink was about five minutes before being stopped by officers.

Two charged with shoplifting

Bobbie Stacey, 30, of 72 Bartle Heights, Liberty, and Mary S. Underwood, 30, of 140 Liberty Manor, were both cited on Oct. 15 at the Dollar General Store by Deputy Chad Weddle and charged with theft by unlawful taking, under $500, shoplifting. The value of the items taken by the women from Dollar General was $80, court records state. Underwood was also charged with parking in an unauthorized handicapped zone. The child for whom the permit was issued was not in the vehicle, court records indicate.

Man charged with auto theft

Michael Turpin, 29, of North U.S. 127, Hustonville, was cited on Oct. 27 on Ky. 906 by Deputy Chad Weddle and charged with theft by unlawful taking, auto, under $500; leaving the scene of an accident, second-degree criminal mischief, and failure of non-owner to maintain insurance. Turpin took a 1987 Ford truck and hit a fence belonging to Brent Brockman and left the scene, court records state.

Man charged with assault

Joshua Butler, 28, of 63 Bee Lee Spur Road, Liberty, was arrested on Oct. 27 by Deputy Chad Weddle at his residence and charged with fourth-degree assault, domestic. Court records state that Katie Williams told Weddle that Butler shoved her to the floor, dragging her throughout the trailer. Butler also fired a pistol in her presence, telling Weddle that she thought Butler was going to kill her.

Taken from the Casey County E911 records, Street Beat represents a history of the initial calls and the information used by the dispatcher to send officers to investigate complaints. It is not an indication of what the officers found upon arrival at the scene or how police may have dealt with the complaint.

LIHEAP program offering heating assistance in Casey

By Katelynn Griffin
Staff Writer

As temperatures drop many Kentucky households will turn up the heat. However, some families are finding it hard to keep the heat on.

The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) is a federal program that offers low income households money to pay their heating expenses. LIHEAP will be accepting applications starting Nov. 12 and run through Dec. 19.

The U.S. Department for Health and Human Services allocates funding to the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services and the cabinet partners with Community Action Agencies throughout the state to disperse LIHEAP funds.

The Lake Cumberland Community Action Agency (LCCAA) is responsible for serving ten counties, including Casey County. Lisa Mann, the Assistant Executive Director for LCCAA, said that the number of people needing assistance depends on the weather. If the weather is mild like last year, the numbers will be down, but the colder the temperatures the higher the number.

Mann has come across people who aren't accustomed to asking for help, especially in the last few years.

"We have people that have never had to apply for help before and they are reluctant," Mann said. "They're reluctant or don't know how to ask for help. These people are having to receive assistance due to job loss, the economy, or reduced hours from work."

Mann said that an average of 1,575 individuals in Casey County get LIHEAP assistance. Approximately one half are elderly and just under a half are families with children.

The two main components of LIHEAP are subsidy and crisis. Subsidy is during the months of Nov. and Dec. and helps residence at or below 130 percent of the federal poverty level. LIHEAP will pay heating costs either by a direct payment or pay a portion of the rent (when heating costs are included in the rent), according to the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services Web site <http://chfs.ky.gov/dchs/dfs.liheap.htm>.

Crisis is from early Jan. to mid-March, or until the funds are no longer available. Along with the qualifications for the subsidy component, households must be in a situation that would involve the immediate loss of heat, such as a utility disconnect notice.

If a household is at or above the 75 percent poverty level, they must pay a portion of the co-payment necessary to take care of the crisis, the site states.

Eligible applicants may not have liquid resources exceeding $2,000, unless a member of the household has a catastrophic illness, in which they may have up to $4,000 in liquid assets that are used for medical and living expenses.

Applicants are required to bring several items with them when signing up for assistance: documentation of income for all members in the home from the previous month, Social Security card or permanent residence card for every member of the household, copy of the utility bill or verification from a landlord stating that heating expenses are included in rent (document must include proof of the address), and final notice of utility termination, if it applies.

According to the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services site, KY LIHEAP will assist approximately 150,000 families with their winter heating bills. The federal government began providing heating assistance in 1974.

People can apply at the Community Action office located at 85 Beldon Avenue or they can call (606) 787-9209 and speak with Bernadette

Luttrell, the outreach specialist. Applications will be taken in alphabetic order based on the letter of the head of household's last name.
